Robertson appointed to NetDespatch Board of Directors

NetDespatch the leading on-demand software company in the logistics and distribution sector, has appointed Matthew Robertson to the Board of Directors. As Commercial Director Matthew is responsible for building on recent rapid growth through further exploitation of its market leading software platform. Having joined the company earlier this year Matthew is growing the sales team and leading the partnership development program both within the UK and Internationally.

"Matthew's considerable skills and knowledge of the Logistics, Distribution and Postal sectors further strengthens the NetDespatch Board and, given the continuing exponential growth of the company, will enable the Board to face the numerous challenges ahead with confidence" says Becky Clark, NetDespatch CEO.

With a career spanning over 10 years in the general distribution and postal industry, Matthew spent 3 years with TNT Post as Group Development Director and was instrumental in the adoption and implementation of NetDespatch Velocity in the Packets and Parcels division of the leading alternative Business-to-Consumer (B2C) postal service. Matthew has also held senior positions at Arla Foods and a leading role in market development for B2C packets within Royal Mail.
